Tigard Celebrates National Public Works Week

Around the clock, seven days a week, the city's Public Works Department provides key services to our community. And that fits nicely into this year's theme for National Public Works Week (May 15-21) – Always there!

In Tigard, Public Works employees look after several services like drinking water, parks, recreation, streets, and more. "We're proud and lucky to have these folks looking out for us every single day," writes one Tigard resident.

Community members who attended the city's Public Works Day held Sunday, May 15, in conjunction with the Tigard Area Farmers Market were given a glimpse behind the scenes at some of the city's big equipment.

"We appreciated being able to see demonstrations and learn more about what makes our city and region (in the case of TVF&R) work so well."

Don't miss out on the fun

More on National Public Works Week

"We value our communities and the role public works professionals play in keeping them safe and functioning smoothly," reports the American Public Works Association, sponsor of National Public Works Week. "Our objective is designed to increase public awareness of their contributions as well as to enlighten the public about the duties, practices, and goals of public works professionals."
