Finalists for Tigard Police Chief to Meet with Community Members on Thursday

The public is invited to a community event Thursday night at Tigard City Hall to meet with six finalists vying for the position of chief of police for the Tigard Police Department.

The six applicants who will be available to speak directly with community members at the public forum on Thursday (Jan. 26) are:

- George Delgado, Chief of Police City of Des Moines, Washington
- Jeffrey Groth, Chief of Police City of Sherwood, Oregon
- Kathryn McAlpine, Assistant Chief of Police City of Tacoma, Washington
- Steven Shea, Chief Deputy, Clark County Sheriff's Office, Vancouver, Washington
- Chris Sutter, Assistant Chief of Police, City of Vancouver, Washington
- Thomas Matthew Worthy, Major, Oregon State Police

“Tigard residents can ask questions of and meet with our finalists in person,” said Dana Bennett, Human Resources director “The concerns of our community should be aligned with the department’s future leadership.”

What: Public meeting with final candidates for Tigard chief of police

When: Jan. 26, 7-9 p.m. (Thursday)

Where: Town Hall, 13125 SW Hall Boulevard

Who: All Tigard residents and the general public

Cmdr. Robert Rogers, a 20-year department veteran, is currently filling the position of interim police chief until a permanent replacement is named.
