Tigard Celebrates Annual Water Independence Day

The City of Tigard and Tigard Water Service Area are again celebrating their Water Independence Day. This milestone date commemorates completion of the Lake Oswego-Tigard Water Supply Program on June 9, 2016. On Water Independence Day, Tigard proudly made the transition from renter to water supply owner, securing Tigard's water future.

The City continues to deliver safe, high quality drinking water from the new supply to customers in Tigard, King City and Durham. Customers can learn more about their tap water in the City's recently-published 2017 Annual Water Quality Report, available on the City's website.

The summer season is approaching. While we anticipate having adequate and reliable water supply, we encourage customers to use water wisely through prudent water conservation.

The City is now offering free Water Audits to Tigard Water Service Area customers to help customers conserve water. To learn more and sign up for a free audit, visit our website: <http://www.tigard-or.gov/WaterAudit/index.php>.

Please join us in celebrating Water Independence Day and the value tap water brings to our community every day: delivering clean, great tasting Clackamas River water; keeping our families healthy; making sure we have enough water to fight fires; and supporting our local economy.
