Tigard Officer Suspected of Driving While Under the Influence

While off-duty, a member of the Tigard Police Department was arrested under suspicion of driving while intoxicated. The arrest was made by the Clackamas County Sheriff's Office. Ron Wommack, an 18-year veteran with the agency, has been placed on administrative leave.

In response to the allegation, Kathy McAlpine, the Chief of Police for the City of Tigard stated: I would like to affirm that any matter that involves Tigard Police Department personnel and their ability to carry out their duties within the community is of utmost importance to me as Police Chief. An internal investigation is underway, in addition to the processes under the Oregon courts. You can be assured that a fair and truthful resolution will occur. I thank you for your continued trust.”
